The Rev. Derek Jacobs, associate pastor at St. Luke "Community" UMC, Dallas, and youngest member of the North Texas delegation, with children from the Fairfield Children's Home, a United Methodist facility which provides a home-like atmosphere for children from infancy through high school, located across the road from Africa University. Both are located on property that was part of a mission station built on property deeded by Cecil Rhodes in the late 19th Century. The delegation visited and brought gifts to the home following the health center dedication ceremony.
